REJECTS GARFIELD OFFER

Coal Miners' Leader Says That Strike Can't Be Settled on 14 Per Cent. Basis

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 3.—There is no possibility of a settlement of the coal controversy on the basis of 14 per cent. increase offered the miners by Fuel Administrator Garfield.

This flat assertion was made by the International News Service by John L. Lewis, acting president of the United Mine Workers, upon his arrival at his office here today.

"There can be no settlement for less than 25 per cent. proposed by Secretary of Labor Wilson," Mr. Lewis declared. "The miners are patiently waiting for the government to redeem its pledge. They cannot and will not believe that the government does not intend to support the action of its authorized official, Secretary Wilson."

"Developments of the last few days should demonstrate the utter fallacy and inability of a wartime agency such as the fuel administration in attempting to settle a grave problem of such magnitude as the coal strike."

Reports that officials of the United Mine Workers of District No. 6 in Ohio have signed negotiations with the operators are "totally unfounded," declared Lewis.

Informed that labor leaders in Washington had received unfounded reports of negotiations, Mr. Lewis said: "Such reports are totally unfounded. No such action is contemplated by the Ohio officials."

Get on Trail of This Missing Mattress and Win $10

Has anyone found a large hair mattress? If so, it is worth $10 to the lucky person.

The mattress was one of the most cherished possessions of Mrs. Rachel B. Williams of No. 26 Hereford street, Back Bay, who before her marriage was Susan Jackson.

While being transported from the Williams' home here at Doyle to their town house, the mattress dropped from the automobile and vanished.

Therefore, if anyone should come upon a homeless hair mattress—large and robust, and having the appearance of being used to a good home, he or she would do well to return it to Mrs. Williams who will gladly pay the reward.

WEBBER QUILTS AS PELLETIER'S ASSISTANT

Abraham C. Webber, assistant district attorney of Suffolk County for ten years, tendered his resignation to the district attorney yesterday.

Mr. Pelletier said Mr. Webber would be replaced, not only by the district attorney personally, but also by the action of the board of supervisors who come before the court.

He then promoted Daniel J. Lyons to the position held by Webber, and advanced David Macorris to the place vacated by Lyons.

Mr. Webber has tried many important cases, among them the stock exchange frauds, in which he secured a number of convictions. His last big case was the so-called fish trust, in which he secured a conviction against the late John D. Rockefeller, who was found guilty of creating a monopoly.

Mr. Webber announced that he intended to devote his time to private matters.

Basket Fund Nearing $7,000 Mark

"Please do not forget us."

This simple, pathetic appeal ends hundreds of letters received by the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund Editor asking for free dinners for Christmas. These letters are increasing in number as the time for giving the baskets of food draws near.

During the last few days hundreds of these messages telling the sad story of many a household have been received by the American. Whole hundreds of these letters are now on the basket fund editor's desk awaiting investigation. Many of them are from widows with from three to six children each, others were awarded by the kiddies themselves who hope they will not be hungry Christmas when other children are having their fill.

RESERVE POLICE FORCE FOR HUB

Men to Fill in During Emergencies Similar to Recent Strike Being Organized

Boston is to have a reserve police force which will be under direct charge of Police Commissioner Curtis.

The reserve force is to include 1,000 men, who will be supplied uniforms similar to those adopted for use of the police department.

The outline of the new organization was given by the American today.

The organization of the new force has been in progress for some weeks, but until plans were better perfected, no publicity was desired.

For some time Police Commissioner Curtis has been developing the idea of a police reserve, which would form a permanent line of defense in case of emergency, within the city of Boston.

Systems of reserve in various municipalities have been carefully studied, and it is said that adopted by the city of Boston, with a few variations, will be more closely followed.

The necessity of a police reserve, according to those in close touch with the Police Commissioner, was made manifest, first, by the strike of the Boston policemen, but in the expansion and economy, which followed the calling of the State Guard before the new police force was organized, the plan for a reserve was well underway.

The basis of the personnel of the new organization is to be the volunteer force which responded to the first calls of the Commissioner, and which has been thoroughly canvassed in the interest of the new reserve.

Vulgar Dress Craze to Pass On, Says Elinor Glyn

By International News Service. Paris, Dec. 3.—Immediate dress for women is but an ephemeral craze and will soon pass away, in the opinion of Elinor Glyn, famous English novelist, whose stories have established her as an authority on phases of fashionable life.

"From a standpoint of strictly common sense, I feel that the present fashions are only a psychological reflection of the kind of epoch which always follows the great periods of sorrow, such as the recent war," she said. "By crystallizing them and placarding them as immoral, we only succeed in labelling them forbidden fruit."

INQUIRY IN VOTE FRAUD CASES

Senators Decide to Investigate Charges Following Ford's Defeat by Newberry

Washington, Dec. 3.—Investigation of the election of Senator Newberry, Republican, of Michigan, was ordered today by the Senate.

Senator Calder reported a resolution from the Committee on Audit and Accounts giving the Senate Elections Committee power to investigate both the primary and general election of Newberry.

The committee will not take up the question of the primary election because of the action of the Grand Jury in finding "true bills" against Newberry and others in the primary election case.

Henry Ford, who was defeated by Newberry, is to be investigated at the same time. More than 130 have been indicted in Michigan, including Senator Newberry.

The resolution includes the investigation of the campaign of Henry Ford as well as Newberry.

Senator Tillman, chairman of the Elections Committee, has not returned to Washington. He is expected back this week. Arrangements will be made for the committee to hold a conference of Republican senators decided to take action.

The resolution ordering investigation was passed by acclamation.

MAYOR APPEALS FOR EXTENSION OF TAX LIMIT

Loss of revenue due to prohibition, together with increased cost of city government, were the main reasons given by Mayor Peters in advocating extension of his bill to increase the Boston tax limit, in an appeal to the Legislature today.

The bill, suggested by Governor Coolidge, would increase the present tax limit of $25 for three years so that it would stand at $11.52 for general municipal purposes.

The Mayor made a plea for city employees, declaring that if he did not request legislation enabling him to at least partially grant their demands for wage increases, he would be negligent in his duty.

He said in part:

"The present yield of $425 per thousand for municipal purposes, plus the revenue from other sources, provides for all departmental expenditures except those of the country, of the debt and interest demands, of the Legislature today."

SELECT HEAD TOMORROW

Volunteers from among this force have already been enrolled, and at a meeting to be held in Room B, 238 tomorrow, officers to head the reserve will be selected.

SECOND ATTEMPT TO ROB PHONE EXCHANGE

The second attempt within a week to break into the Newmarket telephone exchange on Day street was foiled today by the operator stationed there.

Two men approached the rear entrance to the exchange shortly before daybreak, shook the door, and called out the name of the "operator."

They then entered the exchange, immediately alarmed the police, but by the time the officers arrived, the men had vanished. Practically the same thing happened last Friday night, except that then the officers arrived a time to see the men retreating through an alley.

MESSAGE ON RAILROADS

Washington, Dec. 2.—President Wilson will not send a message to Congress on the railroad situation until after December 15th, when he will confer with Senator Charles McNary and Representative Ekeh, in charge of railroad legislation. This was announced at the White House today.

There are no contemplated messages in the plan for the return of the railroads on Jan. 1.

SAMUEL C. HARRIS PARDONED

Samuel C. Harris, a former Boston horse dealer, serving term at East Cambridge for receiving stolen automobiles, was pardoned by the Governor's Council today.

Previous hearings physicians testified that Harris was suffering from an incurable disease, Harris, who was wealthy and lived at the Hotel Somerset, was sentenced in 1918 to 2-1/2 years in the Middlesex County jail.

STATE RESTS CASE IN ROLLINS MURDER TRIAL

Data obtained from the Mexican government for American citizens and property rights. Senator Fall said the subcommittee, cooperating with the state department in the present situation, had not expected developments of the kind now taking place within the next few days.

The state department today is waiting the reply of Carranza, and is in a position to take the whole matter into its own hands. The whole matter may be sent to Congress for action. Meanwhile the department is preparing to answer with data any new light on the possible attitude of Carranza.

Neither the state department nor the Mexican Embassy had any information today which would shed new light on the possible attitude of Carranza.

At the embassy the substance of reports was the hope for an amicable settlement of the matter. The information...

Panic Follows Fire In Chelsea; General Alarm Sounded

Chelsea, was thrown into panic today by a general alarm fire which started in a rubber shipping shed on Auburn street, just opposite the gas tank of the last Boston Gas Company, and threatened a general conflagration.

Fire apparatus from Revere, Winthrop and Boston, responding to the alarm sent out by Chief David H. Hudson of the Chelsea department, arrived after about fifteen minutes of several hours in extinguishing the blaze, which by the time the firemen arrived had other buildings and threatened the time of the fire.

Just as the moving spirits are in the immediate vicinity of the fire, it is not yet known, but it is said that the fire was started by a rubber worker, Lloyd H. Chase, a police volunteer and a member of the fire department.

That many more volunteers for fire service during the police strike than was given out at the time is shown in the fact that a number of those who are pushing the reserve force.

Stub Toe Shoes to Kick Out Stylish Long Vamps

Away with vamps! This doesn't mean the downfall of Theda Bara, nor that jet earrings and snaky black velvet gowns must be relegated to the ash heap.

Eminent fashion authorities believe that the fashionable long vamp shoe will soon be replaced by something less than a short high top. The new shoe will be guaranteed to make the foot look as if it were chopped square.

It will be becoming to the possessor of twinkling number seven and three, but there is no doubt but that the perfect number seven, had her day. "Long aristocratic lines" will go the way of other things aristocratic.

During the war, she tripped about with short broad shoes that fitted as tight as a Chinese slipper, and made their feet look only a few inches long.

COAL OUTPUT LESS THAN LAST WEEK

ministration and the operators' committee today.

All coal to idleness has been stopped by the railroad administration, and this morning is being distributed into Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Iowa, Kansas and other states.

The coal shortage is becoming increasingly acute. Priority regulations through which coal is distributed only to households, public utilities, and essential industries are being strictly adhered to in the allotment of all coal by the railroad administration.

The output of the mines is materially less than for the first two days of last week, with the demand for coal very much greater. Officials of the railroad administration do not conceal concern over the situation as the reports came in. It was stated, however, that no action of any kind would be taken until after the return here tomorrow of Mr. Harlow, who was at St. William, Colorado, Massachusetts.

The reports were laid before the officials of the Department of Justice as rapidly as they were received, and it was stated that officials there were giving the matter the closest attention. It is reported that all mines in Maryland are closed, although a limited part of them were in operation a week ago. These mines, located in Maryland, County, supply the national capital with coal.

COAL DEALERS SCOUT IDEA OF HEATLESS DAYS Here; Say Fuel Supplies Are Ample

There is no actual coal shortage in New England, and no danger of heatless days or a shutting down of industry because of the miners' strike, according to general opinion today among Boston coal dealers, both wholesalers and retailers.

Even the most pessimistic admitted that New England has enough coal to last for several weeks. The coal situation is not as serious as it appears. The coal situation is not as serious as it appears.

Woman's Conduct Aroused Interest of Capital; Accused as German Agent

By Universal News Staff Correspondent

Paris, Dec. 2.—The fate of a woman scorned is blamed by Jovely Pay Bernain de Havel, laughing in a cell in St. Lazare Prison, Paris, for her arrest as a traitor to France.

Pay, known in Europe as the "mystery woman," is alleged by innuendo, who has Chamberlain's mandate for hunting and bringing to trial the traitors who seriously endangered France's cause, to be the clearest woman any since Mata-Hari, who exploited her infidelity to the French Republic before a firing squad.

The daughter of a distinguished French noble and soldier, Colonel Baron Victor de Havel, Pay, Colonel Victor de Havel, Pay, was one of the proudest families in France, after her first husband, Bernain, had died, she married a Frenchman, and after a few months, and she became the leader of the extreme set of Paris society.

GERMAN CABINET IS TOTTERING, NEAR FALL

Will Refuse to Sign Peace Protocol or Pay for Ships Lost at Scapa Flow

By KARL M. VON WIEGAND,
Boston American Staff Correspondent.

Berlin, Dec. 2.—Indications multiplied here that the German government will fail, if Britain and France insist upon the demands arising from the scuttling of the German fleet at Scapa Flow.

The cabinet, it was authoritatively stated, is unanimous in the determination to resist the allied demand for the greater part of the German fleet, and, and larger amounting 40,000 tons. This demand was made after peace was signed and ratified. The cabinet is equally determined to refuse to sign the peace treaty continuing, in effect, the armistice conditions after peace becomes operative.

CABINET NOT BLUFFING.

"My personal opinion is that the cabinet as now constituted will not sign the protocol containing these two important demands," declared a high official to me this morning.

The thought that the government is bluffing naturally arises, but from information just coming in, that Frankfurt has been warned of a possible occupation by the French and that preparations are under way to withdraw the German troops in that vicinity and the district farther back, lends color to the statement that the cabinet is in earnest.

OFFERS RETIREMENT.

Realizing, as it must, the almost insurmountable difficulties confronting it in the coming winter, some members of the cabinet, it is said, are offering to resign, but the probability, that if it does not meet through a foreign crisis, it is almost certain to be overthrown before the winter is over, the government, in the opinion of some, would not be averse to seizing this opportunity to retire with its political colors flying.

Victrola Cabinets For Holding Portable Machines

AN IDEAL CHRISTMAS GIFT for the home that has a portable phonograph is a cabinet which provides a place of safety for the records and holds the machine.

The appearance of the cabinet combined with a portable machine is but little different from that of a regulation cabinet phonograph. You will like the artistic effect and you will find the cabinet a much more convenient stand for your machine than a table. The record file which the cabinet provides is an insurance for your records.

The No. 9 Victrola Cabinet illustrated is of mahogany, with double doors and castor feet. Moulding around the top of the cabinet holds the machine in place. The cabinet is fitted with nine record shelves. Price $30.00.

HOTEL GUESTS DRIVEN OUT BY FIRE

Brookline, Dec. 3.—Thirty guests of the Hotel Belmont were driven to the street, early today, when fire swept the third and fourth floors of the structure.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, one of the guests, finding her way into the hallway on the fourth floor, barred by the smoke, became hysterical and attempted to leap from a window. As she struggled with her four-year-old daughter, Grace, who held her back, Police Sergeant M. W. Keefe, on duty, of the constabulary, entered the hotel by a rear door, made his way to the room occupied by them. He arrived just in time. The girl had become exhausted in her efforts, besides nearly overcome by the breath of smoke. Smith carried the mother and assisted the girl to the street.

The fire started shortly after Frank Nickerson lighted the kitchen fire in the hotel restaurant. Nickerson put a kettle of fat on the big stove and went about his duties.

The fat was ignited, the flames spread quickly through the restaurant on the second floor, and ate their way with great rapidity upward to the third and fourth floors of the structure.

All but some sixty guests had left the hotel. These, mostly women, were caught in bed.

Mrs. Knapp, supervisor of the hotel, says from the office as soon as the fire was discovered, and around the guests on the third floor. In the meantime, Patrolman Charles Howley, who was immediately upon the premises at the time, pulled an alarm and turned his attention to getting out the guests on the fourth floor.

The street about the hotel resembled a rummage sale, as the guests came stumbling out wrapped in bed clothing, all bringing what personal possessions they could lug together.

The fire-fighting force made short work of their task upon arrival. The hotel loss is estimated at a few thousand dollars.

On the street floor, the Franklin Automobile Salesrooms, and the Sullivan Shoe Company suffered considerable damage from water.

ATTEMPT TO HOLD UP TAXI DRIVER AT CHELSEA

Edward F. Dunlop of No. 23 Oak street, Cambridge, a taxi driver, reported to the Chelsea police early today that six men had attempted to hold him up on the Chelsea bridge.

Dunlop, who was driving from Charlestown to Revere, said the men were in an auto and tried to halt him. He sped up his cab, he stated, and escaped.

Placed on Probation

William H. Hild, twenty-one, of Smith avenue, Roxbury, was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction by Judge Hayden in the Roxbury Court today.

Hild was convicted of having broken into the store of William Washington, No. 145 Washington street.

FRANK STRYCHARSKI, 17, IS MISSING

Seventeen-year-old Frank Strycharski has been missing since September 24. His mother, who lives at No. 135 Ames street, Jamaica Plain, has asked the police to find him. Mrs. Strycharski said her son wanted to enlist. She opposed his doing so because he was but only sixteen of age. The lad is 5 feet 3 inches tall, weighs about 110 pounds and is of dark complexion.

GILL OF GIN COSTS

COLLEGE AND COUNCIL CUT SALARIES

Cole, Smith and Miss Johnson Among Those Whose Pay Is Slashed

Some of the plans dropped into the laps of the respective officers were found to have a decided salt taste when the Governor and Council had made a wholesale slashing in the salaries provided in the reorganization act.

One of the big slashes was made in the new Department of Public Works when John N. Cole, appointed commissioner, will receive only $12,000 a year, instead of the $15,000 salary of $12,000 which was provided in the reorganization law.

The Governor and Council slashed the salary of Dr. Henry Smith, appointed Commissioner of Education, from $12,000 to $10,000.

Three reductions were made in the new Department of Labor and Industries. Boarding-schools, James Sawyer, appointed commissioner, will receive the $7,500 maximum, but Mr. Robert M. Johnson, the deputy commissioner, will receive $5,000 instead of the $6,000 maximum.

The salary of the Edward Fisher of the Massachusetts Board of Prison Commissioners was slashed from $12,000 to $10,000.

The salary of the new Commissioner of the State Police, Frank D. Kemp, James W. Sprague, John R. Baker and Robert W. Hale, were allowed the $10,000 maximum provided by the law.

WHO'S WHO ON BOSTON'S NEW POLICE FORCE

WALTER A. DRISCOLL.

Everyone knows that Boston has a new police force.

How many know that there are several hundreds of these men already on duty in the city?

How many know anything about these new guardians of the law, what they look like, where they live, and what they do before joining the police department?

In order that the public may obtain this information, the American Stores today a series of illustrated stories introducing the new police force.

Walter A. Driscoll, who has the night "home" route about the large street station, which embraces the theatre section on Tremont, Boylston and Washington streets, is one of the youngest of the men on Boston's new police force.

He is in the service for twelve months and was stationed in Eastern Scotland and in England.

Previous to joining the department he was a student at the Suffolk Law School, where, as a sophomore, he is awaiting the time when he may again resume and complete the study of law.

He is twenty-five years of age and single and lives at No. 517 Huntington street, East Boston. He formerly lived in Chelsea.

CAMBRIDGE MAN SUES FOR $10,000 IN AUTO CASE

Robert E. King, of Cambridge, has been sued for $10,000 by William J. Ayward of Cambridge. He alleges that while walking near Charles River Road in Cambridge he was injured by the defendant's automobile.

King claims that he was struck by the car while crossing the street at a crosswalk.

The case is set for trial in the Superior Court at Boston.

TUGBOAT AND TWO BARGES MISSING

Boston-Bound Vessel Lost In Gale After Leaving Cape Canal

Swanwick, Dec. 2.—Three fears are entertained for the tug John T. Donahue of Baltimore, following a heavy northerly gale which swept along the coast yesterday. The tug was reported missing, and a search party was organized to find it.

The tug was engaged in towing a box barge with coal from the Cape Cod Canal to Boston. She left the canal Tuesday at 3 p. m. for Boston, with two box barges, accompanied by the tug Roger Williams.

Three days ago, the tug was reported missing, and a search party was organized to find it.

SEVERAL SHIPS DESTROYED IN PIER FIRE

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 2.—Pier here today destroyed two big piers of the Canton Lumber Company, located along Baltimore Harbor, destroyed several steamships, including the large steamship Major L. Infant, a United States government vessel; the State operator steamship Governor McLean, a number of other vessels and several tug boats in drydock. The fire also damaged many other vessels lying nearby.

Among the vessels damaged were the big excursion steamship Dreamland, the United States shipping board steamships Lake Duval and Nipahula, slightly damaged, oil tanker William Johnson, slightly damaged and towed into midstream.

William Henry Train, United States Quartermaster Department, took on the U. S. S. L. Infant, was burned to death.

The loss is estimated at $750,000.

My Word! Britishers Borrow Slang From U. S. Doughboys

London, Dec. 1.—Cassell's new English dictionary contains a large number of words that came into use during the war, many of them borrowed from American slang. A few of the innovations are:

Bus—a aeroplane. Could feel—to be in a funk. Pub—a good. Guy—a toff. Highbrow—a highly superior person.

Keweenaw—hunting. No flies on one's nose. Jass—a noisy and boisterous dance in ragtime. Movie—a cinematographic exhibition.

Crutcheon—any number. For the benefit of Americans "old hand" is defined as "old fellow" "cookey" as a constable's objector, "top hole" as the very best, and "washout" as a failure or muddle.

"Wear your old suit a little longer"

—from a statement by George M. Reynolds, one of the country's leading bankers; published in The Chicago Tribune

That's good advice; follow it. If you get good all-wool clothes, you can wear them much longer; you buy fewer clothes

That saves for you and gives production a chance to "catch up"

Our clothes are all-wool; if they don't give you all the satisfaction in wear and style you think they should—money back

Greetings Of The Season To Former Fellow Workers

There are many people in Boston and vicinity who have been temporary members of our store family during holiday seasons and on other special occasions. These have had the opportunity to learn our store system, and have given us splendid satisfaction while with us.

We are in need of a large number of salespeople for the Christmas holidays and would like to have as many as possible of our former fellow workers with us at this time.

We request that any who find it convenient to be with us, call as soon as possible at our Employment Division, 7th Floor, Annex, and make the proper arrangements.

H. G. L. AROUSES MINISTERS TO STRIKE TALK

Washington, Dec. 3.—The high cost of living has created the anxiety of the pulpit. Unless ministers go more pay to meet it there is liable to be a shortage of gospel in the land.

This admission was made by members of the clergy attending the Christian Leaders' Training School which last Saturday World Movement is now conducting here.

Half the ministers in the United States receive a salary that is less than the cost of buying and running a "river for a year," Dr. Alfred E. Isaacs of New York stated at the afternoon session of the school. Higher salaries are not given, sufficient remuneration to keep them from accepting more attractive offers in other fields. "It has become a question of self-preservation," one minister put it.

The session of the school went on record as recommending the passage of the Smith-Towner Bill which is now before Congress.

BELIEVE GERMANS WILL END BLUFF AND SIGN
Paris, Dec. 3.—Despite pessimistic pronouncements in French official circles, American peace delegates declared their belief today that Germany's protest against signing the peace treaty was a bluff and that the Germans will sign the treaty, thus permitting the peace treaty to go into effect. The Americans believe that the German note asking for cessation of war prisoners and protesting against reparations for destruction of the last German fleet at Scapa Flow was addressed principally to the German people and were aimed at strengthening the Berlin government.

Santa to Bring War Toys to British Tots This Christmas

By International News Service.
London, Dec. 3.—English nurseries on Christmas morning are going to look like miniature arsenals, according to the toy advertisements which are filling the British newspapers. Toy stores are specializing in miniature tanks, cannons, airplanes, submarines and lead soldiers, while lead cross outfits are provided for the little girls.

MAY GRANT BROOKLINE TEACHERS PAY RAISE

Teachers in the Brookline schools may be granted a raise in salary as the result of action taken at a meeting of the school committee. Although the teachers did not request the pay raise the school committee will grant an increase if they can see their way clear to award it. A decision in the matter will be reached at the next meeting of the school committee next Monday evening.

One Husband Seeks Alimony from Mother of His Eleven Children

Portland, Me., Dec. 3.—When Clerk of Courts Lincoln P. Crockett closed his doors at the end of the regular November entry day for the Superior Court, twenty-seven divorce actions had been filed.

In two cases couples who have been married thirty-one years each are asking legal separation, while one suit is brought by the father of eleven children.

HUSBAND ASKS ALIMONY.
Charles C. May, a local clerk, the petitioner who declares that his wife, Mary, deserted him to July 1914, after eleven children had been born to them. Eight of these children are living and the father asks the custody of five minors. He also accuses his wife of cruelty and adultery. The couple were married June 10, 1884, at Cumberland.

After thirty-one years of wedded life, Mahal J. Quaker of this city and her husband, William E. Quaker of Raymond, alleging non-support and cruelty, seven of eight children are living, the youngest nine and the oldest thirty years old. The mother asks alimony and the custody of the minor children.

MAN STATE MARITAL DEFENDANT.
George A. Crockett and Clara E. Crockett have filed cross suits. They have been married thirty-one years and the wife alleges nearly every crime on the divorce calendar—neglect, extreme cruelty, desertion and non-support. Crockett is employed by a local wholesale house and his wife is a nurse.

One Massachusetts man, J. Arthur Jones, of Essex, is sued by Mrs. A. Jones of this city. They were married at New York, N. Y., ten years ago, and the wife claims non-support and cruelty. She asks alimony.

DEADLOCK OVER STRIKE IN PLANT OF R. H. LONG

Franklin, Dec. 3.—Striking employees of the R. H. Long Company, owned by Richard H. Long, defeated a Democratic candidate for governor, held a conference today with Mr. Long which resulted in a deadlock. About 225 workers struck Monday, following notice that the plant would return to a 48-hour weekly schedule. A 48-hour schedule was in force during the summer. According to the company, this arrangement was made with full understanding that the 48-hour plan would go into force again in the winter. The company proposed "straight time" pay for the extra three hours, and the workers refused for time and one-half. It is estimated that employees receive wages of $85 to $100 a week. Following announcement that 75 per cent of the strikers from the machine shop, who quit work last week, were back in their places today on the job, a company official stated today that already several of the R. H. Long Company strikers had applied to return to work.

COLD WEATHER HINTS TO AID MOTORISTS

C. F. Donnocker Urges Use of Alcohol and Consideration for Self-Starters
By C. F. DONNOCKER
Automobile Editor

As the weather grows colder, the motorist must take special precautions to insure the proper operation of his automobile. The use of alcohol in the fuel system is highly recommended, as it helps to keep the engine warm and prevents the formation of ice in the fuel lines. It is also advisable to use a self-starter, as this will save the motorist the trouble of cranking the engine in cold weather. The motorist should also be careful to keep his tires properly inflated and to use a good quality of oil. These simple precautions will go a long way towards ensuring the safe and efficient operation of his automobile in cold weather.

THE QUESTION BOX.
I've been who drives a car, and especially if he does his own repair work. I'm interested in mechanical troubles. Mr. Fixit will conduct a column for the discussion of automobile troubles. Here is a question that will afford some opportunity for discussion. Who does a "fixit" automobile about back through the carburetor, and how does it get past the latest talent? We'll know it does, but how does it, and why? Answers to this are invited, and an open discussion will be started. Send in your answers and also with problems. Let's get together and make this a useful column for all of us.

Real Co-operation for the Disabled Soldiers and Sailors

Patriotism, as it is understood by those who served under the Stars and Stripes in the greatest of wars, is the trust and staunch appreciation of American citizenship.

The resolutions adopted at the national convention of the American Legion are the ideal expression of that sentiment. They breathe the spirit of a purpose and force to keep this country one of ordered government, equal opportunity and equal obligation; and they serve notice upon those who would rewrite that definition into weaker form and upon those lukewarmers in appreciation that it will be extremely dangerous for them to reckon without thought of this new host in the country.

Devotion to country, unselfishness and the sacrifice of personal interest are but matters of course to these young heroes, and, while they are quick and generous in giving, it may be that they are a little too modest and somewhat impractical in asking for themselves. For instance, they would have been entirely and eminently justified in passing a stronger resolution relating to the work of the Federal Board of Vocational Education.

What sort of co-operation has there been between the legion and the board? If the legion's name appears on the official list of the board's co-operating agencies, it was placed there within a few weeks. A leading official of the board said the other day that he supposed there would be the same kind of co-operation in the future as in the past, which has been merely an appeal to the higher-ups of the board by a legion friend of the aggrieved boy. Appeals in some cases have been made by officers of boys' posts, but post officers, as a rule, are not in a position to follow up cases unfavorably acted upon by the board and thoroughly prosecute appeals.

There is room for much improvement in the work for the disabled, and to accomplish that should be the chief practical concern of the national officers of the legion. There must be real co-operation to accomplish the best results. To that end the Boston American submits this concrete proposition, approved by several Boston posts, to the national executive committee of the legion: That a demand be made upon the vocational board for the right to name a member of the case board of the Central Office, and of the case board of each of the fourteen district offices. In other words, that the legion have official representation upon all the boards which decide applications for vocational training. There are some former service men employed by the board as clerks and in other minor capacities, but very few have been elevated to the seats of judgment.

On the supreme and local case boards of the Federal Board for Vocational Education are official representatives of employers and organized labor, but there is no recognition of the direct beneficiaries of the act of Congress—the disabled soldiers, sailors, marines and nurses. Besides such representation for the legion, it would be a good thing for the disabled if they could also have legion representation in the placement offices of the Federal board and in the training sections; and that of becoming on the part of the legion to request such representation.

Five-Cent Fare and Public Ownership of the "L"

The Legislative Committee has reported a bill permitting the cities and towns to supply their citizens with a five-cent fare on the Boston Elevated by a tax assessment. This is, in our judgment, economically a sound bill and yet it is putting the cart before the horse.

It would be a great deal better to make a five-cent fare concomitant with the outright purchase of the Boston Elevated by the public, thus getting rid of the dual financial relations. Of course, the absolute control and operation is the great advantage, but to complete the circle by purchasing the property would be a still further advantage. The money could be obtained so much more cheaply to improve the property if the public owned it and at the same time there is so much less danger of improving the property so that when prices fall, if they ever do, or when the property is so much improved that it can be run less expensively, the old owners might step in and grab the control of the property once more after the public, at great expense, has carried it through its bankruptcy days.

Let Us Have a Public Probe of the Oil Purchases

The American would like to make a suggestion to the Boston Finance Commission. We would like to suggest that the Finance Commission hold a public investigation of the oil purchases and any incidents of the subject.

It has long been the practice of our people to hold public inquiries concerning judicial questions. It is a healthy practice which has grown out of long, long experience. It is like letting the air and sun into dark places. It is better than any other kind of cure and is the best preventative. Secret inquiries, of course, are justified at times, but public inquiries ought to be the rule unless it is perfectly clear that more injustice will come out of a public inquiry than justice. It is difficult to see what injustice could come from a public investigation of the oil controversy.

Keep Up the Improved Traffic Conditions

It must be obvious to most of our citizens that the State Guard have greatly improved traffic conditions in Boston. Of course, the State Guard have had more men at the crossings than usual, but whatever the reason may be the traffic is improved and we hope that the new officers will be able to maintain the improvement. Control of traffic requires brains. It requires study. It requires poise, good nerves, good temper and firmness to punish where punishment is clearly deserved. It is no easy job, but by that very sign it ought to be a stimulating one.

BIG MAGNET ON WHICH WE ARE LIVING

By Garrett P. Serviss

"Why does not a magnetized needle point directly north, and could there be any way to overcome what obstacles there are?"

IN this, as in so many cases, science is unable to tell the "why" of a natural phenomenon, the "how" of which is fairly well understood, as far as it comes within human ken. All the great "laws" of science are simply statements of how things go, without trenching on the question of why they go thus.

In this case the main facts, ascertained by means of our senses, are these: The earth behaves like a magnet, and is therefore considered to be such—a huge, ball-shaped magnet, 8,000 miles in diameter. Our small-scale experiments show that in order that any object may be a magnet it must consist of some substance possessing the peculiar property of being affected by and retaining magnetism.

There is only one substance known to us that possesses this property in a high degree and that is iron. Nickel and cobalt are also slightly magnetic. So it is, in fact, the interior of the earth contains a great mass, or great masses, of iron, to which its similarity distant from the south end of the axis.

Two Magnetic Poles

Next, it is a fact of observation that the earth has two "poles" of magnetism, one in the northern and the other in the southern hemisphere, not so far, as is so often mistakenly believed, corresponding in position with the poles of the earth's axis of rotation, which are the geographical poles.

The northern magnetic pole, for instance, is more than a thousand miles from the north end of the earth's axis, while the southern is similarly distant from the south end of the axis. In speaking of thinking of the poles toward which the magnetic needle points, we must always use the phrase "magnetic pole," to avoid confusion with the pole of rotation, which is what we ordinarily refer to when we speak of the north or the south pole. There is a "magnetic north" as well as a geographic north, and it is the former that the compass indicates.

It is this fact, viz., that the earth has two opposite magnetic poles, which has led to the conclusion that it is a huge magnet. It is the most characteristic feature of a magnet is just the possession of such poles. Every magnet, large or small, has them, and nothing but a magnet possesses this peculiarity. A piece of soft iron, for instance, is a magnetic substance, but it is not a magnet, because it has no "poles," toward which other magnetic substances are drawn.

We now come to something peculiar in the setting of the earth's magnetism. In an ordinary magnet the "lines of force," which determine the direction in which a needle points when under the influence of the magnet run direct from pole to pole. It is true that they curve in an up-and-down curve, but they remain in the same vertical planes. Arrived over the poles, they bend right down into them.

But with the earth the case is different. Its lines of magnetic force, while they do run from pole to pole and dip down into each, when they arrive over it do not keep always in the same vertical planes, but away, so to speak, from side to side, somewhat like the waving lines on a photograph.

Bends Two Ways
Where they lie on the earth's surface they bend east, now west, so that if you could take a magnetic needle and follow its pointing, while carrying with you a memorandum of the direction in which it led you at the beginning of your journey, you would find that the needle turned aside from your pre-established straight line, now more and now less, now toward one side and now toward the other, and when you finally reached the pole, where the needle would point straight down into the earth, you would find that at the end of your journey you were pointing in a direction considerably different from that in which you started, while between start and finish you would have been led in succession on various slants.

More Truth Than Poetry

D'ANNUNZIO SHOWS THE WAY

By S. E. Kiser
Too long the poets, yielding to restraint. Have sung the deeds of others, glorifying The soldier, king, adventurer and saint, Gilding their virtues and their faults denying; Along the ages broken harps are lying Where bards who might have worn heroic bays Communed in tattered garb with Clio, dying Too soon to hear the world's reluctant praise.

D'ANNUNZIO, rising to his soul's demands, No longer in seclusion strokes the lyre. But, plunging forth with brightly flaming brands, Kindles a new and swiftly-spreading fire! In softer years, assailed by Love's desire, The lily ring bubbled from his heart; Now he enacts the epic, to inspire A nation that forgoes his lesser art.

SO let all poets claim new ecstasies And rush to action where the scenes are thrilling; Have done with love and Nature's mysteries, Losing the lust of mere vicarious killing! We who have done imaginary killing And cooing in sequestered nooks must rise; Too long we have been docile and unwilling To strike for fame or lead where danger lies.

SINCE brave D'Annunzio has shown the way, It's up to us to dare, with new ambitions; Come, fellow bards, let's tell the world today That we are out to rearrange conditions! We, too, may dazzle in the high positions, Or set aflame a township here and there; Spurred by a noble frenzy, choose your missions, Have glories in addition to your hair.

A DEFERRED INHERITANCE
The meek may inherit the earth, but meekness doesn't seem to be the principal trait of the men who collect the rest for corner lots.
AS TRUE AS EVER
In spite of what the skeptics say, The old belief is solid still: "Where there's a will there is a way," That is, if it's a woman's will.

Letters to the Editor

Sugar Shortage
Editor Boston American:
In a recent edition of the Boston American was a letter from one of your readers regarding the present shortage of sugar and stating that you could buy all you wanted in England at three shillings and sixpence a pound. Now, it is very evident that the writer does not know what he is talking about and should be very careful in his statements, as it is just these little things which cause misunderstanding of one country to another. As a matter of fact, England at the present time is rationed at six ounces of sugar per week, one ounce of butter, and two shillings' worth of meat. We never had to go so far as this even when the war was on; but England is still suffering for others. Let us at least be just.

JOHN B. THOMSON, Winthrop.
Assistant Yardmasters
Editor Boston American:
In your editorial column of November 28, 1919, under the heading of "Why Federal Control of the Rails Not Yet a Success," you printed a letter which you had received from an experienced railroad man.

I wish to take exception to his statement No. 2, in so far as the Boston & Maine Railroad is concerned. Previous to government control we had on the Terminal division, which, of course, employs the largest yard force of any division, a terminal superintendent, a passenger trainmaster, a general yardmaster, and forty-three other yardmasters, which include assistant general yardmasters, yardmasters and assistant yardmasters. Today we have a terminal superintendent, a passenger and freight trainmaster and forty-three yardmasters of all classes.

The only change under government control was the changing of title general yardmaster to freight trainmaster. And a general yardmaster received $10 per month more than a terminal trainmaster, so the company is really saving $10 per month by this change.

Now let us see how an assistant yardmaster can be a guardian angel for each switchman. I am not sure when the writer refers to switchmen, whether he means switch tenders, or yard brakemen, as both are called switchmen in some parts of the country, so I will give the figures of both.

On November 7, 1919, we had on the entire system:
325 Switchtenders
1,451 Freight brakemen
1,040 Yard brakemen
273 Yard conductors

to say nothing of some thousands of passenger brakemen, baggage-masters, conductors, engineers and firemen. Now, all of these men, when in the territory in charge of the yardmasters on duty, are directly under his charge, to say nothing of thousands of other employees on the system who are indirectly under his charge.

Now, as to the guardian angel (assistant yardmasters) for these 325 switchmen and thousands of other employees, we have on the entire Boston & Maine Railroad system just 11.

I am not speaking for or against government control, but I do think your "experienced railroad man" has not presented the facts to your readers as they should be, and has tried to make an assistant yardmaster's position appear what it is not, a soft soap.

B. W. SWITZER, Assistant Yardmaster, Nov. 30, 1919, North Station.
Antwerp Diamond Trade
In the year 1914 there were about two hundred diamond-cutting shops in Antwerp, employing about 20,000,000,000 a year. Besides, there were between three and four thousand manufacturers, merchants and brokers. What a tremendous amount it is impossible to tell; it is certain that they dressed very well and spent lots of money. If it is considered further that these diamond men had families averaging three to four members, it will be found that the living of over one hundred thousand people depended directly on the diamond trade. The "Diamond Club" of Antwerp, where the yearly business ran into millions, had a membership of twelve thousand, all of them merchants, brokers or manufacturers.

A Business Man Gave Enemies Invisible Thinking Makes "Unrest" Dangerous Minorities
By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1919.
Henry C. Frick has taken into the other world of mystery a powerful personality. The adventurous traders of other days, the Phoenicians and the Jacques Carters, old Rothschilds and Rhodes of South Africa, all will be interested when Frick appears and tells how he left business.

He collected "art treasures," but that was not important, he bought what existed, did not stimulate, grains, as did the Model. It is said that he will give his pictures to the public. That means he will give a lot of his own money, and time and valuable expert opinion to others.

His important work was making steel and building big plants. He was the first to see what would be done by making the steel business of the United States into one concern. He got from Carnegie an option on the Carnegie plant, foundation of the great steel trust, at a cost of one million dollars. He and another man, Leeds, paid a million dollars for the option. They couldn't pay the hundred millions and Carnegie took their one million. He was a business man. Frick never gave him.

You can imagine how Frick felt when Carnegie sold to J. P. Morgan for three hundred millions what he had agreed to sell to Frick for one hundred millions. You must have a good deal of money before you can even imagine how bitter it is to lose two hundred millions at once.

Frick ruled rolling mills and gigantic hammers that with one blow could destroy the lives of thousands.

He was killed by zera poisoning, by creatures so small that his eye could not see them. An Anarchist tried to kill him and failed. Frick was a man and he conquered. Working with force energy he lived until seventy, and then too he conquered. He separated him from all his life, his police, his family, his great steel works in the West, his plans for the future.

Except for a little extra money spent on coffin, funeral and grave, Frick leaves nothing in his will to his heirs. All the money that he built and planned and piled up their millions will leave in the same way, and in a short time.

It would pay you to use part of their money while they are here as John D. Rockefeller does, fighting diseases that only the microscope reveals. They would be also wise if they would learn to earn the gratitude and affection of millions while still here, to know about it, rather than be content to have some one else write that to which they have no name.

He will be interested in the President's diagnosis of "industrial unrest." He thinks failure to arrest the forces that are creating the sordid and malevolent agitators. Wilson is not one to let some one else write that to which they have no name.

There has been more thinking done in this country since the war began than was done in twenty-five years before the war.

The majority of men have nothing, are nothing, have little to hope for. When they think they are eliminated. War makes them think.

Millions of young men were taken from their homes, sent across the water, were disciplined, dressed in blue, educated in a new way. They thought in new way.

The war shook the people of this country out of the ruts; it will shake more when a man can hear a machine gun firing a mile away.

The President says: "Russia today, with its blood and terror, is a hateful object lesson of the power of minorities." To that the President might have added, that a minority can have such power only where, as in Russia, ninety-nine per cent. of all the people are bitterly dissatisfied and with good cause.

A violent minority can control Russia now because another violent minority shamelessly murdered Russia for years.

We have here in the United States an object lesson in the "power of minorities." That power is shown when one man can buy a State, make himself Senator and buy the law. It is shown in the "power of minorities" by one kind of minority leads, as in Russia, to a harmful and more frightening action by another kind of minority.
